Lusia Robinson: Infinity Vase - This vase is characteristic of Robinson's work emphasizing materiality within form integrating indigenous materials with modern technology and applications - The open lip, sweeping neck and round body create a fluid sculptural form and giving each of these elements different ornamentation distinguishes them individually and in dialogue with each other. The shining black interior and speckled decoration on the neck create vertical downward movement which complements the horizontal movement and fluidity of the profusion of infinity circles. - The juxtaposition between the organic subject matter and the use of fiberglass to create the intricate, inlaid decoration creates a dynamic relationship and dialogue within this piece. - Private Collection: Acquired directly from the artist with Bamboo Sculpture as a pairing
